

Don't Run Out Of Gas.

Join Critical Mass.

It's Spring!

That's right, spring has finally sprung. The sun is out, the trees are green and the dinosaurs are starting to move around in the warmer weather. Unfortunately, they're not too happy about this whole fossil fuel thing. In fact, the last one we talked to was downright vengeful. "How would they like if we squeezed their bones into black goo and burned it to produce all sorts of noxious fumes?" he asked. "Let me tell you, it's no fun."

Just a word of warning from your friends at Critical Mass.

Special note to motorists: It won't kill you to wait the extra minute (or less) until you get to the next intersection, where you can turn and no longer be behind us. Honest, it won't even hurt. Thanks for your patience.

Brought to you by Critical Mass

The last working Friday of every month

5:30ish at the Gallivan Center
<http://www.slccriticalmass.org>